 This book
 scrutinizes the practice of

sailing and its relation to philosophy of mind. Sailing brings about a peculiar human-
 artifact
 interaction
 which can lead to
 unexplored
 research paths. The idea behind

 this collection
 is that this interaction is better scrutinized by sailor
 scientists/phil osophers to open up new
 possible
 pathways in
 research.
 Fascinating

theoretical breakthroughs have been provided by observing sailing practices with the most well-known being Hutchins' introduction in cognitive science of the concept of "distributed cognition." However, in times past, sailing has both fueled philosophical metaphors, from Theseus' ship to Plato's image of the intellect as the boatperson of the soul, and inspired philosophers' views (as happened to Herder during a stormy sea trip). The ecology of sailing is highly constrained: sailboats move at the surface between a compressible fluid and an incompressible fluid. Wind originates in certain specific circumstances. Only certain sequences of actions are possible to take advantage of this ecology. The ontology of sailing is both of the boat and of the ocean/wind system. It highlights the fact that sailboats have been for centuries arguably the most complex technological artifacts in each culture that developed them, precisely because the environment they are engaging is so peculiar and demanding - almost the precise dual of Sapiens' adaptive environment. This volume will appeal to philosophers of mind, cognitive psychologists, and marine professionals.

"The perfect escape. Fresh, funny, and romantic. I wish I could sail away with this book." - Meg Cabot, New York Times bestselling author of The Princess Diaries and Little Bridge series Critically acclaimed author Trish Doller's unforgettable and romantic adult debut about setting sail, starting over, and finding yourself...

Since the loss of her fiancé, Anna has been shipwrecked by grief—until a reminder goes off about a trip they were supposed to take together. Impulsively, Anna goes to sea in their sailboat, intending to complete the voyage alone. But after a treacherous night's sail, she realizes she can't do it by herself and hires Keane, a professional sailor, to help. Much like Anna, Keane is struggling with a very different future than the one he had planned. As romance rises with the tide, they discover that it's never too late to chart a new course. In Trish Doller's unforgettable Float Plan, starting over doesn't mean letting go of your past, it means making room for your future.

Sailing With Carol Springer Nature Yacht romance portrays different people who are on vacation on the Atlantic Yacht for a two months trip. These individuals journeyed from different parts of the world to have a fun trip because of various reasons in their individual lives. It shows six elites who came to have a getaway from real life. The big Yacht not only bring these individuals together but it also gave them a medium to meet and mix with the crew members on the ship which in time brought them closer and as a result, it focuses on a young girl, Alice who works on the ship as a seamstress. She met with one of the elites and at first, it was mere connection before it grew into more. She had always been the girl who held her head down but unknown to her, she would find love where she wasn't looking. On the other hand, Philip Langley, a renowned photographer in Toronto, who had just gotten out of a nightmare-called his past relationship, was closed off to every girl, but this particular damsel caught his attention and there was no coming back from that. Let us find out how their relationship grew and the fate of the other elites. Love for Sail Apa Publications (UK) Limited Local Gloucester artist Morgan Henry built a career carving sand. Upon the arrival of a magnificent racing yacht off the beach, he alters his latest contest entry to match. Little does he know that his past skippers the boat. Mary Elizabeth sailed away from Gloucester and made her name on the ocean racing circuit. She never once looked back. Yet for reasons beyond her understanding, she returns. On the beach, in a sand sculpture conceived by a boy but carved by a man, she discovers that her past and her future are more connected than she could possibly imagine. Sea Wife Buchman Bookworks, Inc. Sailing with Carol is about love and sailing; a childhood romance, separation, and reunion. First playmates, we became sweethearts until in the turmoil of the sixties, we walked diverse paths. Reunited decades later, we pursued our dreams, living an enchanted existence for twenty-one years, sailing our boats to faraway places. During those voyages Carol mastered her fears and honed the resolve she would so desperately need in the final years of her life. From novice boater to skilled sailor, she dealt with life's extremes. Sailing became a metaphor for all other aspects of her growth as a woman and she became more confident in her seamanship and everyday life. As best friends, our union became symbiotic, especially when sailing. She became more comfortable with her sexuality, but also steered our boats in storms and stood by me to fight off thugs on a New York dock. She could be angelically innocent, or shamelessly seductive. She was all any man could want in a woman and partner. A Hard

The human being, with an average lifespan of less than nine decades, is born onto a planet that is billions of years old. Yet humans spend this minuscule amount of time fighting, cheating and hating each other all in an attempt to own the earthly materials that have been, and will always be here. Using a fictionalized setting, the author, Jean O. Tinechi, suggests that this human characteristic has persisted over the millennia due to a civilization built on a misguided education. Johnny Maku is an intelligent teenage boy thrust into a luxury cruise ship to Alaska where he meets an equally intelligent and ravishingly beautiful teenage girl, Sandra Peters. Like a storm, his thoughts, events and feeling pummel this shy young man for the next eight days. It is not until the very end that he realizes he had just been on a journey through life.
